Fire and Ice

Some say the world will end in fire, Some say in ice. From what I’ve tasted of desire I hold with those who favor fire. But if it had to perish twice, I think I know enough of hate To say that for destruction ice Is also great And would suffice.

—Robert Frost

This poem was published in the U.S. in 1923 and is in the public domain in the U.S. You may legally copy it, share it, and even make money from it.

This image is from www.pixabay.com, which allows use of all of their images for commercial and non-commercial purposes, in altered and unaltered form.